Mr. Phelps,

Mr. Pyle, with whom I boarded when you last called upon me, is about to start for Boston this morn^g & proposes to take any letters wh. I may wish to send, & have concluded to write you a line.

I wd here gratefully acknowledge & receipt of your "lectures on Slavery". I wish you had also furnished me with ^a privilege of acknowledging ~~it~~ & receipt of a letter. Your book, I have as yet examined but in part. As your sentiments generally on the sin of Slavery, I can respond a hearty Amen. For months it has been my settled conviction that the system of slavery ought to be cut up "root & branch" as soon as possible. But may all the reformers on this subject remember that "light & love" are the only means wh. will prove effectual in giving a right tone to public sentiment. That your Friend Garrison has done good I have no doubt; but that, by his violent & abusive speeches, he has also done much evil, & retarded the cause he wd fair advance, I have as little doubt. I rejoice that you have become deeply interested on the right side of the slavery question. May God grant that the friends of abolition, of "emancipation immediate" rationality interpreted, be rapidly & greatly multiplied. But here, let me say, my mind has not yet become so leavened with sayings opposed to the Colored Socy, as to induce me yet to renounce it. That its system has been in some respects defective, I am not satisfied. That it has like all causes some injudicious advocates, & that its principles & its colony have been much aspersed, I am confident. That it is not an "adequate remedy" for slavery, in my mind there is no doubt. But that it has powerfully retarded the progress of truth in reference to the sin of slavery, I can not yet admit. The lack of interest in the emancipation cause has been owing to a lack of consideration on the horrors & the guilt of slavery. Let the truth on this subject be faithfully presented, & it will take effect among the good, tho' the Col. Socy still lives. Garrison deems the Col. Socy a most inefficient thing, & yet almost with the same breath he will speak of it as exerting a mighty influence in perpetuating slavery, or opposing emancipation! I think many of the warm advocates of abolition would do more good, & multiply the converts to their principles much faster, if they would confine themselves to their great question, & not let off so much steam of malignity against the "Col. Socy."

I hope you will take time & prepare & send me at least a brief letter by Mrs Tyler. She will probably call on you & will not to leave the city till Friday. I wish you to inform me in what week in May, & anniversaries are in Boston occur. I have the impression it is the last week in May. I think of attending this year, & not go on to N. York. My wife is anxious to visit her uncle Blake, & Episcopal minister of South Boston in Spring.
I shall not probably go to housekeeping before next Spring. My ch. & congregation here are much built up, & I have often thought I should in future do more good & perform more labor elsewhere. This year let people here love me as much & are as & as ever, yet I have sometimes thought of seeking another field of labor. I have now about 200 persons, & I find it injures me, to write so much. And besides how can I in future years live in this County seat on $500 salary. Don't ^{omit} this thing to Tyler, any one else. Still if I could get a decent opportunity to change my field of labor I should like it. What should you think of my plan? The "East Windsor Light House," is beginning to make the surrounding darkness "visible." Jonathan Coywell of New Britain is to be one of the Professors!!
Mr Kettleton another! Such a mighty team will probably tear up all + snags of Taylor's ere long. If you go on to N. York in May will you not come on this way. It is a direct & pleasant route, via, Norwich. Dickinson has a protracted meeting now in progress. hosts of inquirers Fote of Berkshire Co. is there. There is a fine revival in Furnington, & in many other places in + vicinity Yours affectionately E. J. Williston.
